

Why every Child is important

We believe that every child should get a chance to be a Scout.

Scouting lets children learn a bit about leadership, a bit about conserving our natural resources, who complete an advancement topic that sneaks STEM into their daily lives, children meeting and working with all kinds of youth, and children who through examples and activities learn to love our country and to give back to their community.

It's the smile a Cub Scout beams when they hand in a bag of groceries during the Scouting for Food campaign, their pride when they fold a flag properly or help their parents erect a tent, or their struggles and ultimate success when reading their den notes at the pack meeting. These are mere moments, but it is on these moments that children grow and thrive.

When you have seen a children succeed through Scouting it can be a powerful thing. Through Scouting a child's potential grows and through this growth we improve America.

That's why we look to grow Scouting. That's why we ask for your help. It's not about the numbers thing. It's about the children.
